

The End of Tribalism

Based on the following definition, it could be argued that tribalism has been with us since the dawn of civilization:

The state of existing in tribes; also, tribal feeling; tribal prejudice or exclusiveness; tribal peculiarities or characteristics. (The American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language, 5th Edition)

Being a member of a tribe provides many benefits such as security, shared goals, history, and a built-in support network that is vital when dealing with stressful situations. However, there are many downsides to tribalism. One example of this is a tribe weaponizing itself against another tribe with the goal of eliminating it altogether. A modern version of this would be the attempted genocide of the Jewish people during WW2.

A more commonplace tribalism, which is causing division and harm within some nations today, involves political ideologies that justify bullying and scapegoating other tribes that do not share the same goals or objectives. This negative form of tribalism activates people to the point of anger, jealousy, spite, and violence; rather than a concern for the well-being of the community-at-large and, by extension, the nation. Unfortunately, when these are motivating forces, it is bad for one's mental and physical health and, if this mindset continues, it can cause irreparable harm to families and eventually an entire country. Because our human nature is intrinsically self-serving, it is unlikely that the negative aspects associated with tribalism will ever go away by themselves. However, for those who believe

God's word is reliable, there is a future scenario describing a world that consists of just one tribe, under one set of laws, and it is ruled by one king who will never be removed from office because he has already proven to be reliable, fair-minded, and effective over an extended period of time. Most importantly, this benevolent king is no longer subject to death: https://www.onetruthonelaw.com/uploads/4/2/3/5/42356753/the_character_of_our_new_leader.pdf

Many will consider these statements as fantastical, but fantasy has a habit of becoming reality when the world becomes a much darker place. Therefore, some of the key scriptures dealing with this future scenario will be laid out. First, it must be established that our Creator has always envisioned this "single tribe world and government" as an extension of what already exists in the spirit realm. In fact, His Son admonished mankind to make the request that this single world tribe and government be extended to the Earth, and function as it does in the heavenly realm:

In this manner, therefore, pray: Our Father in heaven, hallowed be Your name. Your kingdom (government) come. Your will be done on earth as it is in heaven (Matthew 6:9-10; Ed. note in parenthesis; emphasis added; NKJV used throughout unless otherwise noted).

This heavenly government functions as a monarchy and, as such, is ruled by a king, has a limitless territory, a vast number of subjects, and a set of laws that are applied equally to everyone. Interestingly, thousands of years ago, one physical nation consisting of twelve tribes was granted the privilege and honor of functioning just like its heavenly counterpart but, due to their self-serving and rebellious attitude, failed to deliver the desired result and our planet has been worse for it ever since: https://www.onetruthonelaw.com/uploads/4/2/3/5/42356753/antinomian_parallel_in_history.pdf

In recent history, one country had governed over fifty-four different nations/tribes consisting of about 2.5 billion people who identified as members of the British Commonwealth. The existing British system of laws formed a framework for this commonwealth of nations/tribes, which gradually devolved as the power and status of Great Britain diminished. Now countries within the UK (Scotland, Wales, and Northern Ireland) have their own parliaments. Nonetheless, because the UK has a monarchy with a system of laws designed to be applied equally to all subjects, this commonwealth of nations/tribes was a precursor to the final system of government that will be established on Earth. This future government will also have a king, and a singular system of laws that will be applied equally to all the tribes, with proper oversight/enforcement by the leadership who serve the monarch:

Unfortunately, what we see in western nations today are leaders applying laws selectively to one tribe, but not to another: thereby creating tribal divisions within once unified countries. This is driven by self-serving parasitoids whose main focus is to retain power and enrich themselves, even at the cost of harming the country. Christ/Messiah compared this negative form of tribalism to Nicolaitism:

The final removal of all negative aspects associated with tribalism is described in the following scripture:

Now when all things are made subject to Him (Almighty God, the Father), then the Son himself (Christ/Messiah) will also be subject to Him (Almighty God, the Father) who put all things under him (Christ/Messiah), that (the entire family of) God may be all in all (1Corinthians 15:28; Ed. notes in parentheses; emphasis added).

So, Christ/Messiah still has a lot of work ahead of him but, as he has proven faithful and obedient to his Father, he will accomplish everything that still has to be fulfilled. This entire plan of God is summarized in the following link:

According to many scriptures on this last point, mankind is at least one thousand years away from Christ/ Messiah finishing the work/ commission given to him by his heavenly Father:
